BY

DEPUTY CLERK

Supplemental Brief ordered by Honorable Erin L Setser in the December 6th hearing

Plaintiff was ordered to report about further attempts to remove nude images from the Defendant Google Inc image search without requiring a court order. Defendant Google Inc stated that the Wikipedia licensure was authorization to show nude art to children and Muslims and Michael Henry Page Esq was ordered to print the CC-BY-SA 3 license for the Court. Michael Henry Page Esq also called the Wikipedia article a "BLOG" posting in error and claimed it was under the complete control of the Plaintiff. The Plaintiff was one of a multitude of editors who could edit articles but Michael Henry Page Esq mislead the Court regarding the level of control the Plaintiff has over articles. This misleading by Michael Henry Page Esq was similar to Jennifer Haltom Doan Esq misleading the court reporting that text that could be a link was as much a rational for displaying Michael Peven's erect penis due to 'Curtis Neeley' searches, as an actual link would have been.

Michael Henry Page Esq and Jennifer Haltom Doan Esq misled the court due to being insufficiently schooled in wire communications and without malice. The Plaintiff invested a great deal of work and proved for Jennifer Haltom Doan Esq that a link is not the same as text and added and then removed the link for demonstrative purposes.

Wikipedia "BLOG" revision attempts

The Plaintiff was able to revise his user profile page at Wikipedia and deleted the nude photographs done by the Plaintiff that were used in articles that are not like BLOGs in the least. The deletions were reverted by OTHER users and the Plaintiff was banned from editing Wikipedia and could not alter anything while this litigation continues. The Plaintiff is unable to add or remove anything but agrees with Wikipedia Foundation Counsel that Google Inc should not be allowed to require users to opt-out of being thumbnailed but should be ordered to not thumbnail unless specifically invited to do so by the artists using the robot exclusion protocol as a default do-not-index.

FineArtAmerica.com "REP" and GOOG disobeying

The Plaintiff examined the image search for "Curtis Neeley" and found a great number of nude photographs that resulted from <FineArtAmerica.com>. The Plaintiff proceeded to contact <FineArtAmerica.com> and requested that the Plaintiff's nude photographs be excluded from the googlebot-images search spider. FineArtAmerica.com has already modified the robot.txt file as requested. Upon closer examination it appears that many of the nude images were already in directories that were not supposed to be searched. It is of absolutely no value to establish "REP" or rules created by the Defendant when the Defendant does not follow the rules it makes. The Plaintiff was no longer allowed to edit Wikipedia for several days and <FineArtAmerica.com> has now altered their robots.txt file and the Wikipedia Foundation has altered attribution to the CN Foundation instead of "Curtis Neeley". The efforts of the Plaintiff could have been seen in the prior exhibits except contrast was increased and relevant text was not legible so they are included as Ex. Wiki D and a week worth of ceasing free speech is documented in Exhibit A and dialogs with fineartamerica.com is included in Exhibit B and the <dictionary.com> definition of integrity is included as Exhibit C in order for Michael Henry Page Esq to learn it and instruct Defendant Google Inc in the use of the word in US Title 17 § 106A.

Google Inc BLOG attributions

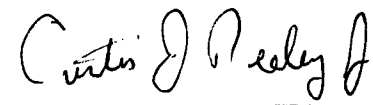

Google Inc owns <blogspot.com> and should not have confused Wikipedia.com with a BLOG. <nimril.blogspot.com/> was a BLOG entry that caused a nude to appear attributed to the Plaintiff correctly but was not posted by the Plaintiff. The Plaintiff contacted the person who had posted the moon poet nude image and attributed it correctly to the Plaintiff. The BLOG is in Spanish but the Plaintiff posted a comment and requested it be attributed to the CN Foundation if used. The BLOG manager removed the use of the nude by the Plaintiff and this has already resulted in it no longer returning in the images.google.com search. Google Inc is claiming that any BLOG post that correctly attributes a nude image to the Plaintiff gives Google Inc the right to display these nudes to children in spite of the intent of US Title 47 § 230 and while using US Title 47 § 230 and alleging it protects Google Inc from liability as an ISP despite the fact that this is exactly the opposite intention of the statute. Google Inc is not an ISP and makes a great deal of money selling advertisements to actual ISPs attempting to sell Internet connectivity. Google Inc relies on older judges who are apparently easily convinced that Google Inc is an Internet Service Provider protected from liability while providing pornography to minors and NOT providing connectivity.

Google Inc was sure to point out that other old judges have ruled Google Inc was an Internet Service Provider and again claimed to be an ISP in a bare deception to Honorable Erin L Setser during the hearing. This use of the term ISP is deceptive and Google Inc is not an ISP regardless of how many elderly judges they can convince that they are. Google Inc will not deceive a JURY or even another judge in the next decade or so after judges begin to have more familiarity with wire communications as defined in US Title 47 § 153 ¶ (52) and called the Internet elsewhere to bypass regulations. US Title 47 § 230 is titled § 230. "Protection for private blocking and screening of offensive material".

1 It was interesting how Google Inc counsel attempted to refer to their "pet" statute as not
2 written to protect screening but "ANOTHER" section being titled this way. The reference was to
3 §230 (c) titled: Protection for "Good Samaritan" blocking and screening of offensive material so
4 what Google Inc Counsel alleged had enough truth for a lawyer to say "ANOTHER" section was 5 titled regarding blocking offensive material. US Title 47 § 230 is entirely titled "Protection for 6 private blocking and screening of offensive material". The Statute is entirely titled to reflect the 7 opposite intent to what Google Inc uses the Statute to avoid liability for being a pornography
8 content provider. Google Inc traffics in pornography as their primary business and yet alleges that 9 they only organize other people's pornography or other people's data.

11 Whereas Curtis J Neeley Jr has done everything humanly possible to help Google Inc to 12 stop showing nudes in safe images searches for "Curtis Neeley" including altering personal speech
13 and artistic expressions and asking other sites to follow the Google Inc Robot Exclusion Protocol
14 (REP) even when Google Inc does not currently follow it; Curtis J Neeley Jr prays Honorable
15 Erin L Setser now order Google Inc to not return nudes in searches for "Curtis Neeley" regardless 16 of where on the Internet Google Inc locates nude images done by the Plaintiff. The Plaintiff also 17 prays that the Robot Exclusion Protocol (REP) become an opt-in instead of an opt-out so that no
18 directory is searchable by an image search unless it is specifically listed as granting the right to 19 search engines to make thumbnails. The Plaintiff states that there is usually an assumption of 20 privacy being recognized that has been eliminated now by Google Inc. Putting material on a
21 website should not grant Google Inc or other parties the right to sell access to it in violation of 22 US Title 17 § 106A. Thumbnails as large as the originals are nothing but copies and not subject to 23 the fair-use exceptions in US Title 17 that Google Inc exists exclusively because of.

25 Respectfully submitted by hand,

26

Exhibit A₂

Subject: Alteration attempts for attributions.

I hope you have had a good weekend and I have been exceedingly busy altering my public speech to prevent nude images from being attributed to my personal name before minors by Google Inc.

Each Google image search preview page below has been addressed.

1. images.google.com

page has http://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/commons/thumb/0/05/Figurenude_%2826%29 by CN Foundation.jpg/600px-Figurenude_%2826%29 by CN Foundation.jpg

Michael Henry Page Esq alleges US Title 17 § 106A does not protect the moral rights of an artist to prevent artwork being displayed in a manner that is defamatory and indecent and this is now a matter for a JURY. The law has not been before a JURY yet and I believe that copies that are displayed in a way that is shameful is specifically prohibited by US Title 17 § 106A(a)(2), US Title 17 § 106A(3)(A) as follows. - (2) shall have the right to prevent the use of his or her name as the author of the work of visual art in the event of a distortion, mutilation, or other modification of the work which would be prejudicial to his or her honor or reputation; (3) subject to the limitations set forth in section 113 (d), shall have the right—(A) to prevent any intentional distortion, mutilation, or other modification of that work which would be prejudicial to his or her honor or reputation, and any intentional distortion, mutilation, or modification of that work is a violation of that right. Other modification easily covers displaying copies of the work before minors and Muslims as is obviously prejudicial. I was impressed Michael Henry Page Esq knew roughly about Perl 5 $time; function but marvel that he misunderstands common English in US Title 17 § 106A. Michael Henry Page Esq might begin to refresh himself with the VARA from 1990. Changing the context of the display is a modification which is prejudicial. Better practice that argument before a test JURY. I have and know the results. I tend to find test jurors who are a good cross-sample in Wal-Mart and while at church. Church is a bit narrow a perspective but is generally a good start in AR.

Opposing GOOG counselors, FineArtAmerica.com Support, et al,

The following three photographs still result from a GOOG image search for "Curtis Neeley".

1. <http://fineartamerica.com/images-framed-small/images-small-private/breast1-2x3-curtis-neeley.jpg>
2. <http://fineartamerica.com/images-stretched-canvas-small/black/break/images-small-private/breast1-2x3-curtis-neeley.jpg>
3. <http://fineartamerica.com/images-small/julie1-curtis-neeley.jpg>

Would you please disallow the directories as follows or move #3 into an already protected directory?

1. images-framed-small/images-small-private/
2. images-stretched-canvas-small/images-small-private/
3. images-small/

We are making progress but have not quite yet accomplished privacy.

Google Inc Counselors,

Why does an excluded directory name not automatically get disallowed like in #1, 2 above? It should and would be very simple in Perl and PHP which GOOG uses in its "proprietary" processes as follows.

Below is not quite functional but any GOOG programmer can fix in their sleep.

$Directory_being_searched="$x"; #examine each directory being thumbnailled or searched for each $disallow(robots.txt) { #cycle through every line of robots.txt needs subroutine
$x =~ m/$disallow/die/ig; if $x =~ (m/die//g) {exit;}
} #end of for each loop check if the $disallow text ever matches the directory being searched irrespective of capitalization or series and exit if it does

The epoch system, as used most operating systems, represents a datetime as the number of seconds after a specific date and time. For Unix systems, the epoch began on January 1, 1970 at midnight GMT (UTC). Other systems have different epochs. Because of this, you cannot assume that an epoch time of 2,003,131 means the same thing from system to system, because different systems have a different "second 0". Storing a datetime as its epoch is not portable.

It will not take six months for a fully operational SleepSpot.com.
